Commissioners & Alternates

The California Coastal Commission has 12 voting members and 3 non-voting members. Six of the voting members are "public members," and six are local elected officials who come from specific coastal districts. All voting members are appointed either by the Governor, Senate Rules Committee, or the Speaker of the Assembly; each appoints four commissioners, two public members and two elected officials. Each Commissioner may appoint an alternate to serve in his or her absence. The Secretaries of the Resources Agency, the Business and Transportation Agency, and the Chair of the State Lands Commission serve as non-voting members and may appoint a designee to serve in their place.

The screenshot shows the California Coastal Commission website. At the top, there is a navigation bar with links for Meetings, Services, Learn, Participate, Access, and About. The main heading is "Coastal Development Permit Applications & Appeal Forms". Below this, there is an introductory paragraph explaining that development within the coastal zone generally requires a permit. A text box provides details on Coastal Development Permits, stating they are the regulatory mechanism for compliance with Chapter 3 of the Coastal Act. The page is organized into two main columns: "Apply for a Permit" and "File an Appeal". The "Apply for a Permit" column has four steps: 1. "Is this an emergency?" with a "Download your Emergency Permit Application" button; 2. "Are you requesting a permit within an area with a Local Coastal Program?" with a "Proceed to Step 3" button; 3. "In which County are you requesting a permit?" with a dropdown menu and a "Download your Permit Application" button; 4. "Print your Permit Application, fill it out, & mail it to your District for processing." The "File an Appeal" column has four steps: 1. "Review Appealable Projects" with a dropdown menu and a "City of Los Angeles - Coastal Exemptions" link; 2. "Appeal Information" with links for "Appeal Process FAQ" and "Appeal Process Info Sheet"; 3. "In which County are you filing an appeal?" with a dropdown menu and a "Download your Appeal Form" button; 4. "Print your Appeal Form, fill it out, & mail it to your District for processing." Below these columns, there is an "Extras" section with links for "Permit Processing Filing Fees (Title 14 Section 13055) & Form 400" and "Post-disaster structure replacement Exemption Request form & information".

California Coastal Commission

Coastal Development Permit Applications & Appeal Forms

Development within the coastal zone generally may not commence until a coastal development permit has been issued by either the Commission or a local government. The Coastal Act defines development broadly (with a few narrow exceptions), to include not only typical land development activities such as construction of buildings, but also changes in the intensity of use of land or water, even where no construction is involved.

Coastal Development Permits are the regulatory mechanism by which proposed developments in the coastal zone are brought into compliance with the policies of Chapter 3 of the Coastal Act. After the Commission certifies a Local Coastal Program (LCP), most coastal development permit authority is delegated and coastal development permit applications are then reviewed and acted on by cities and counties. In the ports of Port Hueneme, Long Beach, Los Angeles and San Diego, the port governing bodies exercise similar permit authority under certified Port Master Plans. But the Commission has permanent ongoing responsibilities: it retains continuing permit jurisdiction over certain specified lands (such as tidelands and public trust lands), and it has appellate authority over specified categories of development.
